

Collaborative work

In the long run we will have a way to work more organically with code fragments in a shared repository - Probably built into Jennifer. The current front-runners are (add any suggestions you think may work):

- <http://collabedit.com/uv34g>

In the short term however we just have a simple page in here where people can edit code sections that will be merged in 😊. Feel free to add sections from the Todo List if you think you have anything that may help 🤖

AI

Part of the AI works by matching on keywords then taking an action - Any suggestions for keywords with resulting actions will be appreciated (only need to describe - will be converted to the script language later)

"level change" -> Add moderator text "Request level change" + Add message
"Level change request received"
```

Languages

Currently languages are catered for by phrase files that simple swap english words for those in a selected language. Please update or improve any files as needed.

- de - German
- fr - French
- it - Italian
- nl - Dutch

You can also add a new language if you like using the same format. Changes made will merge into the system within 24 hours.

We aim to also use your selected language for the options page so expect a new batch of words to be added for translation in the next week.

beforeunload event to the task page

Guess to do this will need a change to the body html:

```
<body onbeforeunload="return exittask()">
```

And a bit of javascript:

```
<script>
var ended = false;
function exittask() {
  if (ended == false) { return "Are you sure you want to leave - if task not finished, Jennifers mood will drop!";
  }
}
</script>
```

Whilst the above will work it would be nice to stop if you have finished the task. but I guess you can run something like this in the javascript when the task is finished.

body.onbeforeunload="";
```
